

Dr. Anișoara DUMITRACHE

Anișoara DUMITRACHE, Ph.D, is university lecturer at the Faculty of Psychology and Educational Sciences, department of Educational Sciences, University of Bucharest. She teaches ICT related disciplines to “ICT in education” for different master and bachelor programmes, and has more than fifteen years of experience in distance learning.

She is the founding member of the Centre for Research and Promoting Equity in Education (CCPEE) and advisory board member for the “Internet hour” initiative of the association Save the children Romania.

Her research interests include: ICT in education, distance learning, educational platforms, Game Based Learning and Gamification, Open Educational Resources & Practices, and Google Educational products. Her research activity includes articles and studies published in specialized journals. She is involved in different EU Erasmus + projects.