Portuguese CTeSP courses

The Educational System in Portugal is regulated by the State through the Ministry of education and science.

The public education system is the most used and implemented, but there are also private schools at all levels of education.

Portuguese CTeSP courses

In Portugal the compulsory education begins at 6 years old and ends when the student does 18 years (12th year of schooling).

After that is a question of choice...

Portuguese CTeSP courses

Portugal has universities since 1290. The first university in our country was the University of Coimbra.

The Bologna Declaration was adopted by universities and polytechnics.

In universities, the assessments are made on a scale of 1 to 20 values. Most courses have a duration of three years, and at the end of this period, the student is officially formed in the area that he has chosen.

(However, you can always increase your qualification with a master's degree, and later with a doctorate).

Portuguese CTeSP courses

Unfortunately many of the existing courses do not correspond to the real needs of the labour market.

And the best way to understand what kind of professionals are needed in the market is listening to businesses.

Portuguese CTeSP courses

And its exactly what our universities are starting to do. As an example we can speak about the University of Porto.

The University offers a wide range of skills and resources of I&D and innovation that can be placed at the service of companies and other organizations.

Portuguese CTeSP courses

As a way to approach and expand the network between the scientific community and the business sector, the U. Porto promotes A2B sessions (A for Academy, B for Business).

Portuguese CTeSP courses

But... students also seek innovation in teaching. They also look for ways to study through their schedules, ways to continue own evolution, or to study in other countries without being there.

This is the online teaching....

Portuguese CTeSP courses

The distance education is a way of teaching characterized by physical separation between the teacher and the student, because the contact between them is mediated by different media.

Nowadays its common to see this type of education announced on internet but also in resumes.
